Results are based on telephone interviews conducted August 4-7, 2011 with a random sample of $\pm 1,319^2$ adults, aged 18+, living in all 50 U.S. states and the District of Columbia, including an oversample of $\pm 376^2$ non-Hispanic blacks, consisting of $\pm 88^2$ interviews done as part of the random national sample and $\pm 288^2$ interviews with blacks who had previously participated in national Gallup Polls and agreed to be re-interviewed at a later date. The data from the national sample and re-interviews are combined and weighted to be demographically representative of the national adult population in the United States and to reflect the proper proportion of blacks in the overall population.

For results based on the total sample of national adults, one can say with 95% confidence that the margin of error is ± 4 percentage points.

For results based on the sample of $\pm 376^2$ non-Hispanic blacks, the maximum margin of error is ± 6 percentage points.

For results based on the sample of $\pm 796^2$ non-Hispanic whites, the maximum margin of error is ± 5 percentage points.

For results based on the sample of $\pm 1,204^2$ registered voters, the maximum margin of sampling error is ± 4 percentage points.

For results based on the sample of $\pm 347^2$ non-Hispanic black registered voters, the maximum margin of error is ± 7 percentage points.

For results based on the sample of $\pm 746^2$ non-Hispanic white registered voters, the maximum margin of error is ± 5 percentage points.

Interviews for the random national sample are conducted with resp

11. Do you think that relations between blacks and whites will always be a problem for the United States, or that a solution will eventually be worked out?
